57 German Planes Shot Down Tuesday As Nazis Swarm Across Channel

FOUR AUSSIE KEY MEN DIE IN ACCIDENT

Three Cabinet Ministers, Chief General Staff, Are Plane Crash Victims

SYDNEY, Aug. 12.—Three members of the Australian war cabinet, the chief of the general staff, and six other persons were killed today in the flaming crash of a Royal Australian Air Force plane near the Canberra airport. Prime Minister R. G. Menzies said the disaster was "a great national calamity, the consequences of which are not yet fully realized."

The dead were Brig. Geoffrey A. Street, defence minister; J. V. Fairbairn, air minister; Sir Henry Gonsky, chief of the general staff; E. E. B. Ford, Mr. Fairbairn's secretary; Col. Thornthwaite, Brig. Street's secretary; and four members of the plane's crew.

The ministers were en route from Melbourne to Canberra to attend a cabinet meeting. Witnesses at the R.A.A.F. airfield saw the plane arriving in ideal weather.

It dived the airframe, then turned south and disappeared behind a low hill. An explosion was heard and flame and dense smoke arose.

An emergency R.A.A.F. squad drove several miles, partly across rough country, and found the plane, a Lockheed Hudson bomber, blazing so fiercely that it was half an hour before the flames could be extinguished and the charred bodies of the three ministers, Gen. Gonsky and the six others in the plane recovered.

A tree was standing in the middle of the wreckage, leaving the path attempted to make a forced landing but crashed into it.

Mr. Menzies said that "every man concerned was doing war service of the first importance."

Other ministers would be sworn in temporarily to take the places of the victims, he said.

Reverend members of the cabinet and the Commonwealth Loan Commission were postponed.

The Commonwealth was stunned by the tragedy, which claimed the lives of some of the most important figures in the Dominion.

It was officially stated that the crash was caused by "a technical fault."

Storm Causes Widespread Havoc In City

Scenes of the havoc wrought by the 80-mile-an-hour gale which swept down on the city Monday evening are shown in the above layout. No. 1 shows the demolished roof of a store at 9432 118 avenue, while No. 2 shows that even brick walls gave way before the terrific power of the wind. The damaged building is the Snowflake Laundry. Little Joe Regan, of 9622 104 street, wasn't worrying about the damage wrought when the cameraman caught him in No. 3. Joe was thoroughly enjoying himself as he belted down the wreckage on Victoria avenue. No. 4 shows a large tree at the rear of 10296 105 street which was toppled by the gale, crashing through a trellis fence and missing the house by scant inches. Sitting on the tree is little Bob Duplex.

COTTRELLE TO MAKE SURVEY OIL SITUATION

Distribution Regulations Intended To Make Orderly Marketing

OTTAWA, Aug. 12.—G. R. Cottrelle, oil controller for the department of munitions and supply, will obtain a complete picture of the gasoline and oil situation in Canada before issuing any regulations for consumption, he said here today.

An order issued by Mr. Cottrelle last week prohibiting the establishment of any further retail outlets for gasoline in Canada had no thing to do with use of motor fuel by the public, the controller said.

"All we are intended to cover is the distribution of gasoline, in the hope that it would bring about more orderly marketing," said the controller, here today in consultation with officials of the department.

TORONTO OFFICE

Mr. Cottrelle will carry on his task as supreme controller of oil and gasoline traffic during the war from his office in Toronto.

The prohibition against opening new gasoline stations "has no connection whatever with consumption," he said. "It is a forerunner of nothing except better marketing conditions."

"I think everyone will agree with me that there are more than ample means to take care of the public. Any move would be a waste of effort."

TO TOUR VALLEY

Mr. Cottrelle has been on the job about two months. He said his first task is to obtain a complete picture of the industry in the province.

He will make a tour of the oil producing areas in Canada particularly in Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba.

He will also look into the possibilities of increased production.

The turnover of oil wells is producing around 25,000 barrels a day instead of an anticipated 35,000 estimated at the time Mr. Cottrelle took over.

To maintain present production means constantly drilling new wells and some capital investment of from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000 a year. Several new prospects are being investigated.

U.S. TO SUPPLY BRITAIN 1,400 PLANES MONTH

Delivery Will Start Late In 1941 It Is Stated

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—Arthur B. Purvis, chief British purchasing agent, disclosed today that the United States has offered to supply Britain with between 1,300 and 1,400 of the 3,000 fighting planes monthly they had requested. Delivery of the planes, however, would not start before "late 1941," he added.

Purvis said this smaller program had been suggested by William S. Knudsen of the United States defense commission.

Britain wanted the larger number starting next January, but Knudsen suggested that they plan on a smaller number beginning later in 1941.

Purvis said the proposals were still in the study stage. He could not predict what eventual arrangements might be made. He likewise declined to say how many planes would be delivered under existing contracts.

He said he was sure to discuss the matter with officials and also to introduce a similar program to the British government.

ROME, Aug. 12.—Authoritative Italian circles indicated tonight that Italy would claim slices of both Greek and Yugoslav territory sooner or later as due Italian-ruled Albania in a "general settlement."

Virginia Gayda, Fascist editor and the Italian government, expected Greece to "answer for its own sins." Gayda declared Italy could not tolerate Greece's "acts against the independence of Albania," and accused Greece of designs on Albania.

With the Italian-Greek tension mounting, the Italian government and Yugoslavia was reported by the Fascist press.

The Yugoslav difficulty, according to the newspaper, La Tribuna, was over the killing of a minor Fascist leader in the Italian town of Zara on the Yugoslav coast. The Zara populace was said to be aroused.

Nazi Planes Swarm Across Channel In Massive Air Raids

A large formation of Dornier bombers flew across the channel toward France and "Damaged at least five." Another Spitfire group engaged more than 30 Dorniers over the coast of Kent.

A British flying officer attacked a German bomber. One after the other, aliening the rear gunner in two of them and seeing thick clouds of smoke pouring from a third as it dived, crippled, toward the sea.

Over the Thames estuary, the wayward to London, two dozen Dorniers, flying in tight wedge formation, were attacked by a group of Spitfires. The official account said that a German pilot who already had shot down eight German planes "saw the rear gunner of a bomber he had attacked jump out by parachute." The plane then fell into the sea.

Reports from one southeast coast town said at least six German planes were shot down off two points in that area.

Undertones to the day of aerial struggle were reports of the aerial shooting by a long range cannon yesterday of one south-east coastal town. Householders expressed belief that shells and bombs, caused damage to houses. However, authorities said there was no confirmation that all of the reported cannonade.

Bombes constantly arriving from German planes shot down over the coast. At least 13 German aircraft were captured and two others were seen dropping to parachute into the sea.

A barrage balloon trapped one German bomber off the southeast coast.

FINAL CHECK

A final check-up of yesterday's air battles over the coast, showed 62 German planes down, 30 fighters and 28 bombers—over the southeast coast and 12 British planes previously had been announced.

Between 500 and 600 German planes participated in the raid, the spokesman said, amounting as the British.

Eight Junkers 88s, six Junkers 90s, three Dornier 214s, two Dornier 17s, 11 Messerschmitt 109s, 24 Messerschmitt 110s, 11 Heinkel 111s and seven others, brought down by anti-aircraft fire, which have not been identified.

Germany lost more than 100 trained airmen in the fighting yesterday and "only 12 of our own pilots did not return," the air ministry news service said.

The press told Britain that the long-thundered German raid had now been launched and that the "Battle of Britain" finally is on. The press warned that three captured German planes might be followed next by an attempt at actual invasion.

The planes unofficially reported to have been brought down included Junkers Dorniers, Heinkels and Messerschmitts. They were said to have attacked in waves of from 50 to more than 100.

BATTLES ABOVE CLOUDS

As fast as the Germans came British Spitfires and Hurricane fighters met to meet them. Most of the battles were fought above the clouds.

Streets of southeastern towns were reported to be covered with spent machine-gun bullets from six round the coast.

First reports listed 10 downed as a result of the morning's bombings and several houses demolished, hotels and public buildings were endangered by tons of bombs.

Apparently the Germans were pursuing their plan to use the mass raid as captured airmen seemed better treated, more experienced and given more expert instructions than previous ones. They were taken prisoner. Their ages ranged from about 20 to 34.

Survivors of one German Nazi warplane today included a young girl.

BALLOONS FALL

Five German air craft, pilot and crew, were captured. One was shot down by the British. The other four were taken prisoner.

As the Nazi drive gained momentum the Royal Air Force kept up its bombing of German cities and neighboring German-occupied countries, firing incendiary and high explosive bombs and dropping gas.

The British press warned that an attempt at actual invasion may come next.

It was considered possible that German and not enemy bombers, heavy explosives, caused damage several residential districts of one southeast coast town yesterday. An investigation was started by the authorities.

Hector C. Bywater, noted British expert, in the "Channel" use of "guns across the channel" in today's News Chronicle, declaring that aerial "spotting" would be necessary for accurate firing at such a distance.

It is 22 miles from Calais, Germany, to Dover, the closest point in Britain, and the English port, and many guns can shoot that distance. Long range, cross-channel bombardment has been considered a definite possibility ever since the Germans first evacuated attack on Britain. Their "Big Bertha" long-range bombardment of Paris during the war, from the forest of Compiègne, was from a distance of 26 miles. London is about 90 miles from the coast.

The Germans have claimed to have shot down 100 German planes.

trucks was disrupted by poles and wires falling from the trucks.

Passengers in a south-bound street car had an unpleasant experience on the high level bridge. The force of the fierce gusts caused the car to rock slightly on its springs as it proceeded southward. The car was on the bridge in order to save the minds of its passengers, and to avoid the making of a mess under the conditions, the motorman advised the passengers to all sit on the floor.

MOTORMAN PRAISED

Passengers were filled with admiration for the calm courage of the motorman and Thursday morning city commissioners received several phone calls from passengers who were wishing to express their gratitude to the motorman.

One of those who phoned was Mrs. T. M. Murphy of 9827 104 street, who said she felt that the city commissioners should know of the motorman's calm and steady manner on the street car on which she was riding carried on during the storm.

"The trolley came off and the motorman went out to put it back on the street car," Mrs. Murphy said. "He was almost blown off the bridge and he came back and returned. The calmness and courage of the man in charge of the trolley was most worthy of praise and I wanted the mayor and commissioners to be informed of the splendid manner in which he conducted himself."

A check-up by the street railway department revealed that the motorman in question is Louis Gumbel, 11814 77 street.

Super. Robt. Christie of the city telephone system, reported that the gale caused no general trouble to the telephone system except on the South Side near the auto camp where 10 poles were blown down. One or two poles were blown down in other sections of the city, but the main damage was caused by lines from poles to houses being broken by falling trees. Mr. Christie estimated that between 20 and 100 telephones had been put out of service by the gale.

Four gangs of men were at work early Tuesday repairing damage caused by the wind. They will continue at work until all phones are in service again. All damage is expected to be repaired within two or three days and the majority of the phones will be in service again Tuesday afternoon.

Prominent Pilots Contract To Ferry British Warplanes

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Earl Orman, Charles E. Taylor, and William H. Alexander, first Great War flier and pilot on the first New York to Berlin flight in 1919, have joined the growing contingent of Americans who will ferry American-built fighting planes across the Atlantic or from assembly points in the British Isles to military airports. It was learned here yesterday.

Orman and Alexander left New York Sunday night with five other pilots for Canada. All have signed contracts with the British government for one year's service at $100 a week, plus a $500 bonus at the end of the year. In Canada, they will fly warplanes to British or American military airports as passengers on commercial planes.

The Two Roads

There are two methods of carrying on a war—the democratic and the totalitarian.
Canada has chosen deliberately the democratic concept. It leaves something to the individual. He still retains, in large measure, his freedom of action. He seeks
the work for which he is best qualified,
he directs his efforts towards the things which he feels he is best fitted to do. The state, it is true, may exercise certain powers
of persuasion, economic forces direct
his steps, but he is drawn toward the task
in which he is engaged by his personal likes and dislikes, his training, his qualifications for the work, and by the reward
which he receives for his effort.

In the totalitarian state it is different.
Direction comes from the central authority. Men are placed in industry. They remain there until they are called to some other task. Industry takes care of the men engaged. The pay is limited. The standard of living is low. Rationing in food, fuel, clothing, started from the beginning of the war—even earlier than that.
The work is directed by the state—the state is everything, the individual is nothing.

There are advantages in both lines of approach. If the conscious effort of the nation is to be devoted at all times to the task of war, to the enslavement of men—
if the individual is always to be of relative insignificance and the state alone is the sole factor, then it may be admitted that
for a time at least there is greater striking
force and power within the totalitarian method. But it carries with it the seeds of destruction. It leaves nothing to the play of human emotions. It does not measure the desire for freedom which has always been an element in the lives of men, and always will so long as men are free.

It assumes that man is a machine,
that he is capable of functioning as a machine. The tragedy of Germany is not that the people have become enslaved to a mad ideal but that they no longer care "to cancel their own captivity."

We desire to live in freedom, to live under a democracy. We must mobilize the man-power and woman-power of the nation. That is the plan back of national registration, which opens on August 19. It is an effort to organize on a larger scale
for earlier victory than might otherwise be achieved.

Employers Should Co-Operate

On September 1 thousands of young men in Alberta, now training with units of the Non-Permanent Active Militia, will go into camp for two weeks to take field
training under active service conditions.
When they march out of camp at the end
of that period other young men will take their places and will train from September 15 to September 30.

These men are making a real sacrifice
in order to fit themselves for the defence
of Canada should an emergency arise.
They are from offices, stores and workshops, and they should not be penalized for their patriotism. Employers should give them every consideration and make it possible for them to go into camp as a war service on their part. Unit commanders are anxious that their men get all the training possible this year. Employers can co-operate by seeing that the men are given time off to carry out their military duties. Already the men are training two,
three and in some cases four and five nights a week, giving up recreation and periods of leisure at home in order to perfect themselves in the grim arts of war.
They are doing their bit, and while inconvenience will undoubtedly be caused employers in some instances, that inconvenience
should be shouldered as part of the price of good citizenship.

It is not only good citizenship and good Canadianism on the part of employers to see that these men get to camp, but it is also good business for the military authorities have stated that if enough volunteers for the militia camps do not come forward, the men will be taken under the draft system and called into camp for at least thirty days. In that event the inconvenience they cause employers will not be considered. The men will be ordered to report for the compulsory training and no

excuse will be accepted.

In those businesses where a number of men have enlisted in the militia employers
will have an opportunity of choosing the dates the men will go into camp, and with the month's training split into two-week
periods, it will not be necessary for all the men to be absent at one time. Should they have to be taken under the draft system it is not beyond the bounds of possibility that a considerable number of them will be ordered to report at the same time.

35 Per Cent. Taxes

Anyone in a democratic country who is tempted to think he would like to live under a supposedly "more efficient" dictator type government would do well to ponder the fact, officially stated in Rome,
that the Italian ordinary budget for the year will amount to 35 per cent of the national income. Which means that on the average more than one-third of the amount every Italian earns will have to be handed over to the state—without counting war costs in whole or part, as the budget was made up before Italy went to war.

A further consideration is that the state would not have to make any such demand upon the taxpayer were it not for the policy of conquest which compels the Government to maintain a vast army, navy and air force, not for purposes of protection but for the purpose of pulling Hitler's chestnuts out of the fire and grabbing territory from other countries.
Which grabbing up to date has been a standing bill of expense, not a source of profit, to the taxpayers. In two years 18 per cent of the wealth of Italy was taken by the Government in capital levies to pay
the cost of keeping order in conquered Abyssinia and carrying out what development has been done there.

Aside from the propaganda-intoxicated Fascist youth, this order of things cannot be very much to the liking of the Italian who has to work for his living.
Nor can he get satisfaction from knowing that the more widely the aggression policy is expanded the worse it must be for him.

The Common Round

By J. BUTTERFIELD

United States senators have it all over their opposite numbers in the Canadian Red Chamber because when they say something it immediately
attains national notice, whereas most of the obiter dicta emanating from the somnolent lads
at Ottawa are mistaken for just another snore.

"HYSTERICAL" Wheeler of Montana and Holt
of West Virginia, have dug
their little hooks into newly appointed war
secretary, Republican Stimson, because he warned
of a congressional committee of immediate danger from invasion and urged conscription.

The demurring senators may be right, but
with history in the melting pot the way it is now,
any sane nation must take action based upon other national mistakes. Whether they are invaded or not the people of the United States
will find Stimson's war plans a great deal more protective and comforting than the people of Britain found Chamberlain's umbrella.

Mrs. Dorise Nielson, M.P., North Battleford,
has been having a good time in the Parliament House—thereby continuing the reputation in that place of Miss Agnes MacPhail who, for many years as member for South Gray, did so much toward maintaining the national spirit of gaiety.

The lone woman
SOME WOMAN: member is reported to have told the House to "do something and not talk as much." She is apparently largely interested in the farmer for she demanded a fixed price of $125 for wheat instead of 70c, that the government buy all farmers' wheat
under the Wheat Board and declare a moratorium on farmers' debts.

No wonder the House talks a lot! And, after all, that is what the name of the place means—
a talking place.

A well-meaning but misguided school trustee
at Mission, in British Columbia, has once more raised the more properly the children's flag, go out and salute the flag with spectacular ceremonies every school morning. He points to a clause in the manual of school law stating that children should be assembled
for this purpose every Monday morning. But even this is not done because of the trouble in organizing it. The real objection to this proposal goes deeper than a mere matter of trouble and organization. Its roots are deep in the British character. It is not a part of that character to make a parade and a public spectacle of its deepest feelings. The British flag to a Briton is something that he takes for granted. If it were,
it has always been there, it always will be there.
There is no need to get out and worship it every day in order to assure it that you love it.

You may even hear people make jokes about it. If you want to see how they really feel about it—just try and pull the old rag down—
just once!

All the silly consensus of the silly dunes of
the desert, all the whippersnappers, all the propaganda and all the talk of "another imperialist
war" is confounded by this demeanor of the British people, girl about their enemies. The British people are actually fighting to keep
a better way of life than any other in the world.
They are fighting to keep alive the name and the tradition of freedom in the world—Vancouver Province.

The ULTRA
PATRIOT

A devout minded brother, deeply versed in prophecy and the hidden mysteries that control
our affairs, has written an article dealing with the curious similarity between the action taken by the Almighty in dispersing the Spanish Armada and in assisting the evacuation of the troops from Dunkirk. He says TROUBLED though the British people are, they WATERS the intention to preserve Britain was the same. The defeat of the Armadra was finally brought about by great storms, the driving of the battleships ashore around the north of Scotland, through the Devil's Head at the north of Ireland and southward to perish miserably on the rocks of western Ireland. At Dunkirk, the reverse tactics were used, the waters of the channel are reported to have been
as smooth as a mill pond during the whole time
of that historic evacuation, thus facilitating the passage to and fro of the thousands of almost cattle-shell craft used in that work.

It is well when a nation harassed as Britain
is harassed that she can find an answer to prayer
of an exact and immediate nature in the fortunes
of war. It recalls a statement made by Father Ignatius, the famous Anglican monk of Wales.
Asked by a beggar if he believed in prayers for the dead he replied, "Certainly I believe in prayers for the dead. I believe that the dead are dead. It can't do the dead any harm and it will do the living some good to pray for anything."

Let us all raise a hearty cheer for General
Victor Odlum, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D. Upon his arrival in England with the German troops
made a speech about shipwrecked and the
to make with that of Henry V. as reported by Shakespeare before the battle of Agincourt. Of course, Henry's was more classical
in its language as becomes a fellow
clashed in a heated steel armor
plate (like the crenelle) we copy
everything from nature, but the General thought it up to date. He did not exactly say
"Lafayette we are here," but it came to the same thing. What he did say was "We will not fail."
Which comes in the same thing as saying
"Lafayette, you don't know the half of it!"

He said that the English were going to be equal the first driving force in the fighting force.
He recalled the famous story about the first and second Canadian divisions in the last war. A fellow in the second, upon landing in England
in a mass from the front, was asked by a Blighty. As a result of experience in England
he said to the wounded hero: "We're going to have a hell of a time living down your fellow reputation in this country." The hero replied:
"That's alright, but as long as you live up to our reputation in France."

Religion Day By Day

By WILLIAM T. ELLIS

PERFUMED
Beside the traditional tomb of Jesus, in the narrow crypt in the centre of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, stands a silent monk, hiding a silver vessel, from which he sprinkles, be-famed holy water upon the hands of visitors. I declined the attention, which others prize.
But I am not blind to the symbolism. Out of the tomb of the Resurrection proceeds the fragrance of a holy life. All who have been crucified with Christ, and go forth from the empty tomb, should shed the sweetness and beauty of His personality. Not death's odors, but life's

La Fleche States the Case

"French Canada remains the repository of everything we have fought for. Now that France has fallen, we're left alone."

Thus French Canada's most distinguished soldier, General Lord R. La Fleche, summed up Quebec's position in the world conflict as he set foot on Canadian soil yesterday,
after viewing blitzkrieg at close quarters as an attache to the French High Command. It is a thought too seldom emphasized. Free France is dead. Britain fights for her life and the world's liberty, with a united Empire behind her in which Quebec is proudly doing her share. But Quebec is also doing something more, something no other section of the Empire can share,
unless one counts the noble remnant still fighting under General Charles de Gaulle's leadership. Here is mustered all that remains alive of the France her sons were proud of. Here a French-speaking population elects a French-speaking Parliament, still free to express its people's will. Here French culture makes its last stand.

Hence it is with a dual pride and a dual loyalty that the sons of Quebec make their contribution to the common struggle. As true British subjects of 150 years' standing they will do their full share, as the sole remaining representatives of an allied tradition equally old and equally honorable, they are exhorted to do something more.—Montreal Gazette.

"Their Finest Hour"

Canadian and American war correspondents
unite to bear testimony to the high and indubitable spirit of the British people in this present crisis of their destiny. We over here can not doubt that, whatever may come, it will be recorded of them, in Mr. Churchill's matchless phrase that, "this was their finest hour."

The evidence, if there were any need to cite
it in detail, is written in statistics that are all the more properly "solid" because this business
is very literally that of life and death.

There are a million and more civilians in the air raid precautions service. There are more than a million men enrolled as volunteers of the Home Guard. The women of Britain, more than a million of them, have answered the call for all sorts of voluntary work, auxiliary to the physical defense of the land and the people
against the threat of invasion.

But this thing can never be properly written in statistics because it is essentially a thing of the mind and soul of the British people, expressing themselves now, in the greatest crisis of their history, in a national unity that is beyond all argument and is indefensible altogether. If you would not admit that this is the point of
that, it would be enough to remind you of the munition workers, voluntarily working 12 hours
a day, seven days a week.

All the silly consensus of the silly dunes of
the desert, all the whippersnappers, all the propa-
ganda and all the talk of "another imperialist
war" is confounded by this demeanor of the British people, girl about their enemies. The British people are actually fighting to keep

On This Date

By FRED WILLIAMS

Eighty years ago today (August 13, 1860),
The Montreal Daily Witness was first published by John Douglass. He had founded the paper as a weekly in 1843 to do what he could to aid the cause of Protestantism and temperance, and the betterment of the condition of the masses. For many years the weekly was a welcome visitor to homes in town and country, and wielded much influence especially among the English-speaking people of Quebec province, notably the Eastern townships.

His son having grown to manhood, John Douglass, senior, also decided to publish a daily edition of The Witness. As a newspaper it was at once a distinct success. It won the esteem of many readers who did not agree with its editorial principles, but said that "if it was in The Witness, it must be true." Among the reporters
in the first staff of the daily was John Redpath Douglass, who proved himself to be more than
"the black son," being a first class reporter and short-hander. Among his first assignments was to travel with the Prince of Wales from Quebec
to Windsor in 1861. He secured a great "beat"
and won international fame for The Daily Witness
by securing an interview with Abraham Lincoln a few weeks before his assassination.
The first interview given by the Great Emancipator
to any newspaper man. He also reported the German entry into Paris in 1871.

The Montreal Daily Witness continued publication for over 50 years. As time went on it was surpassed in size by rivals but never lost its reputation for accuracy. Yet even after the ouster break of the first war with Germany circumstances compelled the daily to suspend. The Weekly continued with Mr. J. B. Douglass as its editor until his death in 1915. Always devoted to Liberalism, Mr. Douglass and The Witness never failed to speak out on public issues. Often it differed with Liberal leaders, especially Laurel, yet there were few whose advice the Liberal Leader valued more than that of "Douglass
of the Witness." I recall that night after night in the House of Commons, Wilfrid Laurier would read a page for the file of The Witness, and
he often quoted from its columns in his speeches
both in and out of Parliament.

Some time in the 1870's the Douglass family
published a Daily Witness in New York City, but it was a losing venture, and J. B. came back to Montreal to edit his father's paper. The daily and weekly, and incidentally, train men of the most noted Canadian newspaper men of the past generation.

From Thy death and resurrection, O crucified
saviour, we would draw those qualities of life
which make for peace and good will as we walk
among men. Amen.

What Is Your Opinion?

This is your column in which
to express your opinion on current events and business. Letters must be brief to enable publication. Many interesting letters received, exceed 300
words and cannot be printed.

Writers are asked to restrict their statements strictly to the subject under discussion.
Seemingly, that part of the advertisement asking for volunteer
registrars is not to be taken seriously.

Editor, Bulletin: In an advertisement in most of Canadian newspapers there is a part of the advertisement asking for volunteer
registrars for National Registration.

I wrote to him by air mail offering my services free of all cost to

McCoy Health Service

The most natural "laxative" is food.

The healthy intestine requires no
other laxative.

The human digestive system is designed in such a way that the more
of food is taken the intestine
sets up an action called peristalsis,
which tends to move the intestinal contents along toward the outlet.

During this peristaltic action, there is an alternate contraction and relaxation of the muscles of the wall,
which has the effect of squeezing
the undigested food portion forward.

This forward motion produces what we call a bowel movement, and this self-cleaning ability of the colon
comes into play when the intestine
is present—not because food is of the so-called "laxative" group or of the so-called "constipating" group.

From this point of view, food in itself is a "laxative" and in health
the only laxative we need is food.
When through faulty health habits,
the colon becomes sluggish and lazy
and constipation presents itself as a problem to be solved, then the presence of ordinary food may not be enough to produce a regular and satisfactory cleansing action. It may then be advisable to help matters
along.

This is best accomplished by the average case by adding to the diet
a generous supply of those foods constituting the "laxative" group.
Foods encourage a better peristaltic
action of the colon by providing
this action with plenty of roughage
with which to work.

When the case is one of chronic constipation, marked by a loss of

tone of the colon, these bulk foods
often have the power of stimulating the normal peristaltic action. This is the principle upon which they work.

Frequently they are of value at the start of any regimen designed to correct chronic constipation. Used at this time, they tend to help re-
train the colon into doing its work in a normal manner. Once normal functioning is established, it is usually possible to cut down on the
amount of these roughage foods,
taking them on more only in the
amount ordinarily needed to produce a well-balanced diet.

The foods supplying bulk or roughage are in general, the vegetables, both cooked and raw, the
fruits, and the whole products.
The whole wheat is of value because the bran thus consumed acts as a natural bulk. The correction of constipation is established, it is usually possible to cut down on the
amount of these roughage foods,
taking them on more only in the
amount ordinarily needed to produce a well-balanced diet.

A good regimen for using these foods is to eat a generous supply of constipating foods, then the preservation is outlined in the article
called "Suffering for Constipation." Readers are asked to send to this article by writing to The Mc-Coy Health Service, enclosing a self-addressed envelope and 5c
stamp.

This trouble with sluggishness
of the colon would not be sent to
for this article, as it may prove of great value.

Health Service, 1111 Broadway Building,

URGES ARMY OF 100 DIVISIONS

DEVONPORT, England, Aug. 13.—Lord Hore-Belisha, foreign secretary, today urged the British government to consider the possibility of an army of 100 divisions to deal with Germany.

Mr. Hore-Belisha said he hoped the British leaders recognized the danger of the position in which we are placed and the forces of destruction which are gathering about our neck.

Here were two psychological dangers, he said. One was accepting the inevitable the inevitable policy of appeasement and with the policy on the ground we have an inadequate of armaments, as if such inadequacy were irreparable and representing every enemy success to be of small moment and minor strategic effect.

"In Africa there is a risk of minimizing the setbacks we are suffering," he said. "Such an under-estimation should be guarded against, particularly in view of our experience surrounding the North African campaign."

"It is to be hoped that our preparation for the coming war will not be shirking," he said. "The military thought that we are failing to show the instrument where it is to be used. The project should contemplate creation of at least 100 divisions."

The Women's Specialty Shop

Dorothy Dix Says:

Dear Miss Dix—I have been married for 20 years and have just discovered that my husband has been having a sordid affair with a married woman for the last three years. For economic reasons and because of my two very fine boys I intend to keep my home intact, but what I need is a philosophy that will help me bear this misfortune that has befallen me and a course of action that will enable me to meet the situation with dignity. Can you make any suggestions that will help me? A WIFE.

Answer: It is pretty hard to find a philosophy that will save a hurt heart, but you might find comfort in the thought that a philandering husband is no great misfortune, and that he is not worth grieving over.

Forget all about the romantic young love of your youth and see him now as a paunchy, bald-headed, middle-aged Roman, who is ridiculous rather than a devil among the ladies and you will find that you can laugh at him and be a little sorry for him instead of weeping over him.

But there is a code of conduct for the forsaken wife that will do a lot to ease the situation. If you are going to live with your husband and accept his support, do so cheerfully, amiably, and put as good a face upon it. Don't make your home a scene of perpetual strife.

You had better get a divorce than to bring up children in a home where the air is always heavy with tragedy, where the mother is always dragging the father's weakness out before the poor little creatures' eyes, and calling on them to sympathize with her and take sides with her.

No, if you aren't sorry enough to play the game, just lay down your hand and quit.

Furthermore, don't discuss your matrimonial troubles with anybody, not even your own mother. Most of your friends and acquaintances will never know that your husband isn't a perfect Dandy if you don't tell them.

That will save your pride and keep you from having to suffer the ignominy of being pilled as a wife who couldn't keep her husband's love. And it will make things a lot easier when your husband finally returns to home and Mother, as he is pretty certain to do, if you don't make it things too unpleasant for him. DOROTHY DIX

MILK IS NO LESS NECESSARY FOR ADULTS THAN FOR CHILDREN

Many people regard milk as a child's food, and some people rarely ever drink it. But medical men state emphatically that it is a very necessary and important part of the diet of every grown person, too. There is no substitute for milk in any other food, and its protein content is the best known body-builder. Milk provides calcium required for teeth and bones, and vitamins. Dr. H. C. Sherman distinguished investigator in nutrition, says that people who drink milk and eat fresh fruits and vegetables may add much as 10 per cent to the length of their lives. Milk is good for children, and just as good for adults.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Dieting isn't the hardest thing about going on a diet—thinking about it is!

Take the woman who has over-indulged in eating for too long. Of course, eating is important to her. Otherwise, she wouldn't be over-eating. But it doesn't become an obsession until she cuts down deliberately, and with the intention of taking off some of those pounds.

Then, the more she gives up, the more she thinks about what she is missing, and the hungrier she gets. She tantalizes herself with the thought of the delicate flavor of the cream of mushroom soup, the sizzling fried chicken, and the lemon meringue pie. The diet is a struggle from one course to the next and the odds are all against her!

Don't punish yourself unnecessarily while getting. Don't eat the meals that are going to be smaller than usual, so all at the table through the dinner hour.

Spiced Grapes Served With Meat, Game Dishes

Grapes are the basis for delightful jams, jellies, butters.

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Our wealth of grapes should be

There are two brand new recipes for spiced grapes. They are well with meat, fowl and game and have a wonderful tang. Remember, the fresh grapes are better preserved in the bath of a small, the entire amount of grape juice can be handled at one time.

MISSOURI SPICED GRAPE JELLY

Four quarts (6 1/2 pounds) prepared Concord grapes, 1 1/2 cups cider vinegar, 4 sticks (4 inches) cinnamon, 15 teaspoons white cloves, sugar, 16 teaspoons salt.

Wash and stem about 8 pounds under-ripe grapes. Wash or steam in kettle and drain, add vinegar and spices. Bring to a boil and simmer covered, about 10 minutes, or until grapes are soft.

Drain through jelly bag. Measure. Add 2 1/2 cup sugar for each cup juice. Add salt and mix thoroughly.

Divide into two approximately equal portions, placing in separate preserving jars. Bring to full boil, turning only until sugar is dissolved. Boil rapidly about 10 minutes or until jelly tests on edge of spoon. Remove from fire and skim. Pour immediately into hot, clean, sterilized glasses and paraffin at once.

To prevent formation of cream of tartar crystals in the finished jelly, let the exhausted juice stand overnight in cold place. Next morning carefully stir on the juice and re-boil it through a jelly bag. The crystals remain with the sediment on bottom and sides of the container.

SPICED GRAPE JAM

Four 7 cups sugar, 16 cups prepared Concord grapes, 1 1/2 cups cider vinegar, 4 sticks (4 inches) cinnamon, 15 teaspoons white cloves, sugar, 16 teaspoons salt.

To prepare fruit, slip skins from about 4 pounds fully ripe grapes. Bring pulp to boil and simmer, covered, 5 minutes. Remove seeds by straining. Chop one ground clove and add to pulp. Add 1 1/2 to 1 teaspoon each of cinnamon, allspice and ginger.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, and mix well. Bring to full rolling boil and cook test fire. Stir constantly before and

Your Baby And Mine

There are few things so agonizing for the mother than to recognize helplessly that her child is drastically different from other children of his or her same sex.

As one mother phoned it, "My boy of twelve is a perfect dud. He is the worst boy you ever saw. You'll all the boys call him a 'dud' and I have to admit that he does seem to be that way."

He is finicky about cleanliness, never to have his clothes dirty or mussed, and thinks a lot about clothes. He is critical of what I wear and said he would like to make a dress for me. Should I let him? So far I've tried to discourage these interests. How can I make him more like other boys?

This is trending on a fragile ground. These children combine a sense of security and a sense of independence which make the man seem masculine and the girl effeminate. I know of nothing to do about it. This is his own individual personality pattern and you can't change it.

But unless the boy is so very different that he cannot carry on his own way of life and is a constant irritant to his mother, which is the ultimate tragedy of such a difference, then you should be able, while cultivating his own interest, also to lead him toward other interests of a more masculine nature.

Today the interests of both sexes tend to blend as one they did not, for now women are as interested in athletics as men and men are as interested in the domestic arts—hence our outstanding

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

Do you think that the current running of the "The Inquiring Reporter" will be an incentive to more Canadian films, and eventually a national film industry in the Dominion?

THE ANSWERS

MISS MARY LEE TYRELL, photographer: It would be marvelous if more Canadian films could be made. We have the most gorgeous scenery which could be used to advantage, and I think a film industry in Canada will come in time.

MRS. M. E. JERRY PRINGLE, housewife: The film being made now will be of interest to many Canadians and I think should lead up to more movies set in various parts of Canada.

ED McDUGALL, businessman: I don't see why a lot of documentary films on the industry, occupations and the life in Canada could not be made. The Hollywood film industry has given an out-of-focus picture of Canadian life, and it would be interesting to have our own films for a true interpretation.

H. MILTON MARTIN, insurance agent: "The Inquiring Reporter" will be of interest all across the Dominion and in many parts of the world. Certainly there is enough material in the province and in the North West Territories to make a series of documentary pictures.

Permits for the building of two city-owned homes for A. Tosti and H. J. D. Hart under the "revolving" plan, worked out by the city and Dominion governments have been taken out by J. J. Turner, contractor for the work. Both houses will be of frame and stucco construction, that for Mr. Tosti being built at 11622 47 street at a cost of $3,000, while the Hart house will be built at 6004 Jasper Avenue at a cost of $3,400.

Council decided Monday evening to expend $10,000 graveling projects if property owners will spend a similar amount in frontage basis or by purchase of city debentures at par, yielding 4 1/2 per cent.

It was intimated by city commissioners that property owners were anxious to have street improvements made, and in many cases were asking for paving. It was pointed out that the graveling would enable considerable amount more improvement to be carried through.

RECONSIDER PETITION

A deputation from residents on 90 avenue sought the paving of that thoroughfare between 110 and 112 streets, but decided to reconsider their petition when the graveling project was advanced.

Queries regarding the power breakdown on Saturday afternoon came from Alderman James H. Ogilvie. He wished to know why there had been such a long delay in making repairs, and also if the plant superintendent was receiving full cooperation from members of his staff.

Deputy Mayor A. Blair Peterson said that the power breakdown occurred on Saturday to supply power to the emergency free of charge. This offer, he stated, had been refused by the plant superintendent as repairs could be made as rapidly as the switch on of the Calgary power plant current could be made.

He intimated that a very generous offer had been received from the Calgary Power Company when the breakdown occurred on Saturday to supply power to the emergency free of charge. This offer, he stated, had been refused by the plant superintendent as repairs could be made as rapidly as the switch on of the Calgary power plant current could be made.

CONSIDER AGREEMENT

Following a personal inspection, continued the deputy mayor, he decided to accept the offer, and connection with the Calgary Power Co. was made shortly before the city plant equipment was repaired.

It was intimated that at the next meeting of the power committee that an interchange of power agreement between the city and the Calgary Power would be considered which would in all probability result in a standby agreement mutually satisfactory to both parties. This intimation came following a request from Alderman D. K. Knott asking for information on the negotiations between officials of the power company and the city.

Proposed amendments in the building bylaw to permit suspension or revocation of any permit when there is any deviation from plans and specifications filed with the permit, and the charging of double rates where a permit is taken out prior to commencing the work referred to the bylaws committee for consideration.

TENDER ACCEPTED

Tender for $12,392 submitted by J. P. Turner for the construction of a new building for the revolving fund initiated by the Dominion government and the city in 1924. The building, which is being constructed by Turner, is a three-story building, and will be used for the city's new police station.

The council authorized the advertising of the building, and a three-story sidewalk to give pedestrian facilities to the school. It was estimated that this work would cost approximately $900.

An offer by Murray Montague, made through P. W. Abbott, K.C., to purchase nine lots on the south side on which homes valued at $4,500 would be erected, was referred back for further negotiations with the city commissioners.

Council approved the appointment of A. B. Bisset as Memorial hall trustee, succeeding the late James East, and of Alfred Farnham to the town planning committee to fill the vacancy on that board caused through Mr. East's death.

Disclosure was made that a new family dwelling which has been converted into 11 suites housing 26 persons with only one toilet in the building prompted Alderman Hugh John Macdonald to request that the commissioners be instructed to draft a bylaw to ensure that proper bath, toilet, wash basin and sink are provided in each of the suites in premises which are being converted into suites.

Joseph Edwards, 12320 Ford Road, suffered a badly cut hand shortly after 8:30 p.m. Tuesday when working with a Fresno machine at paving operations at 106 avenue and 124 street. The injured man was rushed to the Royal Alexandra hospital in a city police motorcycle unit operated by Const. Hughes.

Rug Weaving Is Ancient Art In Teeming India: Visitor Explains Craft

By BOB TORRANCE

It seems like a long jump from the large-scale agriculture industry of Alberta to the ancient rug and carpet weaving craft in far-away India, but R. N. Bhatia, of Sialkot, Punjab, India, now touring America for markets for Indian carpets and rugs, brought them together in Edmonton this week.

As a matter of fact the two industries have very much in common. Just as grain-growing provides a means of livelihood to many Albertans, so does rug and carpet making in India, and the two are related by their food and keep," Mr. Bhatia, a Hindu, said.

Farmers here have many things to contend with, and for their labor receive from the national storehouse sufficient goods as a rule to place them among the more or less secure middle class. In India, carpet and rug making on a slightly different scale, provides for by experiment, new ideas with a return which, too, makes them moderately well-to-do. But carpet and rug making in India is more than a vocation—it is an art, and as an art has many an interesting fact to disclose in its long history.

FATHERS OF INDUSTRY

Long before Jacques Cartier had first sighted Canada and proclaimed a "New France," craftsmen were busy in India making rugs and carpets, that today are the marvel and wonder of all who see them. As far as records show, it appears that it was after the Mongols invaded India, probably during the rule of Emperor Akbar, that the craft first became established in India. Persian artisans and designers who came with the invaders are undoubtedly the fathers of this age-old Indian industry.

To the average Canadian citizen these carpets probably look like just any other piece of home furnishings, but it is not so. For each article is the handiwork of many skilled craftsmen, and is made from the best of Indian dyes. The industry is centered around Mirzapore in the United

MURDER INCOGNITO

By Norman Kahl

Floor plan of Martin Saylor's home. "X" marks position of Saylor's body in study. His five dinner guests were in the living room at left.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
MARTIN SAYLOR, a lawyer with three children.
DALE APPLEBY, Saylor's son-in-law.
HAZEL LEIGHTON, Saylor's sweetie.
WINSTON MARSHALL, a gambler.
GEORGE BARBOUR, Saylor's law partner.
LEUTENANT O'LEARY, police investigator.

CHAPTER II
THE still form of Martin Saylor was a thing of hideous fascination. One arm encircled his head, buried partly in the rug. The other came out straight from his body and bent at the elbow. Only the white sleeve of his linen suit seemed stained by the blood that darkened the rug.

There was nothing—no unusual really.
O'Leary smiled faintly. "Okay. We'll get to that later."
The medical examiner appeared at the doorway. "May I speak to you a moment, Lieutenant?"

The burly officer walked to the doorway and consulted the doctor briefly. When he returned to the study, he said, "Your student body still be removed at once. A further examination will be made in the study. The doctor confirmed the fact that he was shot."

Dale seemed uninterested. "There's one thing I must ask you, Mr. Appleby. O'Leary mentioned 'Did you touch the body?' Dale shook his head. "No. No one did."

"And you're sure no one heard the shot?"
"Positive."
O'Leary settled back into his chair. "That's strange," he mused. "Very strange."

Dale's interest awakened. "Something was wrong, Lieutenant?"
"It was just wondering," O'Leary said. "When you happened to stop over at Saylor's, was there a telephone? You didn't hear a shot, did you?"

"No, I didn't. It might have been anything—standing, for example. It could have been a shot."

London Times Advocates Post-War Relief Plan With U.S. Co-Operation

MECHANIC DIES AS BIG BOMBER CRASHES IN U.S.

LONDON, Aug. 11.—The Times advocated today a post-war relief plan for Europe in co-operation with the United States and other overseas countries as "the most effective answer to the Nazi menace that British policy is bringing starvation to Europe."

NAZIS HAVE PLINY

The Times expressed the belief President Roosevelt will not be "easily misled by specious arguments of well-meaning promoters of such schemes."

TIME FOR PLANNING

The newspaper said, however, the "time has come to plan in advance a definite policy for the relief of Europe as soon as Hitler's downfall is achieved."

FARM HEAD SAYS LABOR PROBLEM IS SERIOUS ONE

TORONTO, Aug. 13.—The only "sound and proper answer" to the farm labor question is to put agriculture on a basis where it can compete in the market for farm help, H. M. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said in a statement here Monday.

Mr. Hannam said that the shortage of farm labor is a serious one, and that the government should take steps to attract more people to the industry.

Farm boys of high school age will help, but an industry as essential as agriculture in wartime must not be left to the make-shift of child labor, said Mr. Hannam.

"The national welfare demands more than that. Nor does it appear sensible to remove soldiers from related training to assist with farm work."

Instead of continuing policies of subsidizing agriculture, the government should take steps to attract more people to the industry.

Ralph Guldahl Figures He Can Win This Trip

TORONTO, Aug. 13.—Let the golfing fates favor him with a "hot" putter for the rest of this week and Ralph Guldahl, the hefty Chicago professional, believes he has as good a chance as any to take this year's Canadian open golf title.

Guldahl has a hunch that past his time has come "to pick up the marbles" after being run up twice in the six times that he has attempted to hit the National title. If only that putter will behave then "everything will be all right."

"For about a year now I've been having trouble with my putting," he said today. "Once I tried to practice sometimes until the moon was in the sky and it still didn't seem to be doing me any good. Then, suddenly, I seemed to find the touch last week. I'm pretty sure I've practiced it out of my mind."

By finding the touch, Guldahl referred to the fact that a week ago he won the Milwaukee open with a par-saving total of 268.

"I just couldn't seem to do anything wrong in that Milwaukee tournament," he said.

Feeding Troops Keeps Sandy Off Golf Courses

By EDWIN JOHNSON

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Aug. 13.—Men who have figured prominently during past years in the headlines of Canadian sport, have found little time to play since they arrived in England with the Canadian Active Service Force.

Take Ross "Sandy" Somerville, the dominion's foremost amateur golfer from London, Ont. now a lieutenant with the Canadian Active Service Force. His daily duties take him and his staff through roles of messenger, country club, and golf course, but his thoughts are not of golf clubs and pars, but of "disturbing the peace" of the Canadian golfers. With others he is responsible for the provisioning of hungry Canadian soldiers along a wide sector of the home front.

"Golf is about the last thing that enters my mind these days," he said. "There are much more interesting and vital matters to be done and anyway I was never a good golfer in the only game I have had since I came over. Golf can very well wait until we have peace here."

That was also the opinion of Staff-Sgt. Mendell Burditt, Toronto's only professional golfer, who is thriving on life in the wide-open spaces of the forward offensive zone.

Burditt, who years ago churched his way to a large slice of the prize money in the Canadian National Exhibition long-distance swim, has "forgotten all such things for the time being at least."

STAN LEONARD SEVEN STROKES OFF HUOT'S PACE

TORONTO, Aug. 13.—Julius Huot of Quebec City's Kent Golf Club began defense of his Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship title Monday by taking the lead at the halfway mark of the 180 titular event.

Playing over the Cedar Brae Club's par 70 course, Huot fired rounds of 71 and 67 for a 138-hole total. This was a stroke better than Montreal's Stan Leonard, who put together a 73 and 69.

Bob Grey of the host club shot a hole-in-one in his third round on the 131-yard 13th hole.

The only entrant from Western Canada, Stan Leonard of Calgary, was seven strokes behind the leader with 145. His rounds were 73 and 72.

Two 18-hole rounds will complete the 72-hole titular event today.

Pro Hockey Loop Has New Plans To Bolster Position

ST. PAUL, Aug. 13.—The American Hockey Association is planning an all-star game next season, patterned after that in the American Basketball Association.

Higgins of St. Paul, loop president, announced Monday.

Proposed of the all-star team to meet the league leading team will be selected by a newspaper and radio poll and profile of the game will be used to strengthen the league's financial position.

The association also will propose a little world series in hockey with the International American League.

Teams winning playoff in some of these leagues would meet in a series, Higgins said.

Yankee Pitcher Now In Hospital

BAITMORE, Aug. 13.—Monte Pearson, pitcher for New York Yankees, is in hospital here with a sore shoulder and pitching arm, but his physician says on reason why he shouldn't go home is to mount duty after proper treatment.

"He's in the hospital wholly on the basis of a sore shoulder, pitching arm," said Dr. Sydney Miller. "He has his arm pitching around the first of July, and he's going. That's what caused the trouble."

Feller Boosts Wins For Year To 20-Mark

CLEVELAND, Aug. 13.—The supposedly weak-batting Cleveland Indians Monday blasted 12 hits, including three home runs, to beat Detroit Tigers 8-5 and break their deadlock for first place in the American League. Bob Feller pitched his 20th victory as he limited the heavy-hitting Bengals to seven safe blows before 23,720. Hal Newhouse, the Detroit starter, was routed in the first inning and was charged with the defeat.

Feller, first hurler in the majors to reach the 20-game mark this season, fanned seven Tigers and was in serious trouble only in one inning—the seventh when he walked three men in a row. Barney McCosky doubled in two runs and another Bengal scored on an error by Feller to make the inning by fanning Rudy York.

Hal Truisky pined his 21st home in the first inning with one runner on and Dean Beal followed with his third career slam of the year, in the fifth. Roy Weatherly drove his fifth round-tripper over the right field wall.

Feller, who has lost six games, ran his streakout total for the year to 197.
